

debenture, preference stock, etc. (and, in mortgages, the situation and description of the property).

(4) The amount invested (or advanced).

(5) The price paid for the investment.

(6) The rate of interest and its periodical dates of payment (in the case of mortgages or leaseholds the recurrent instalments of principal and their dates should be noted).

(7) The date of redemption (or repayment of the mortgage debt).

(8) The dates of the payment of fire premiums (or ground-rent) and the amounts.

(9) The company or firm from whom the interest warrants will be received, and by whom the invested principal will be discharged.

2. An interest diary; to be divided into sets of two months each : thus, as a specimen, for the case of interest payable in January and July (and similarly for [February and August, and so on)—

No. of invest-ment.	Title of investment (or mortgagor's with the amount and rate of interest)	1)9 9(1 10 9		. . .
		Jan.	July.	Jan.	July.

As the interest is received on each occasion a cross might be inserted in the relevant column.

Interest being paid half-yearly, the two months appear on the one page; if interest be receivable quarterly, say in January